DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to the amendment received on July 7, 2006. No new claims have been added therefore claims 1-4 will be fully examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-4 are Finally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Foland (2958166) or Riley et al. (7048620) in view of Rutherford et al. (5692950). Since, Foland and Riley et al. disclose similar devices, for simplicity only Foland will be discussed (both figures are shown below), however the examiner notes that either reference could be used. Foland discloses a rotatable polishing body holder for holding a polishing body (Figure 1) (13), a buff member (12) provide between the polishing body and a rigid member (11) and a driver for rotationally driving the polishing body holder (Column 1, Lines 56-60), but lacks, a rotatable polished body holder for holding a polished body (workpiece), a pressing unit for pressing the polishing body holder and the polished body holder against each other and having the buffer member being deformable within a range of 0.1-0.2mm. The examiner would like to note that the use of a rotatable polishing body holder and a rotatable polished body holder are old and well known in the art, see Li et al. (6458017). However, Rutherford et al. discloses an apparatus for polishing an optical disk comprising, a rotatable polished body holder for holding a polished body (workpiece) (Column 9, Lines 46-50), a rotatable polishing body holder for holding a polishing body, a pressing unit for pressing the polishing body holder and the polished body holder against each other with the predetermined contact pressure (Column 9, Line 51-Column 10, Line 10). The examiner notes that since Rutherford et al. discloses the same material (i.e. polyurethane, Column 8, Lines 24-27), the same thickness (i.e. 1-2 mm thick, Column 7, Lines 33-36) and the same pressure (i.e. 3-20 kPa, Column 10, Lines 8-10) as disclosed by the applicant in the specification for the buffer member, the properties of Rutherford et al. and the applicant would produce the same amount of deformation, therefore the amount of deformation of the buffer member used in Rutherford et al. inherently discloses deforming within the disclosed range of 0.1mm-0.2mm. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the buffer member and the device where a polishing process is occurring, of Foland or Riley et al. with a rotatable polished body holder for holding a polished body (workpiece), a pressing unit for pressing the polishing body holder and the polished body holder against each other and having the buffer member being deformable within a range of 0.1-0.2mm, in view of Rutherford et al. in order to provide global topography of the surface of the workpiece while maintaining a uniform pressure on the workpiece.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-4 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
